

Join Us for the Next Webinar

Using Rubrics for More Effective and Efficient Grading

What do you already know about assessment rubrics? You likely have heard about their usefulness in ensuring fairness and clarity in grading, and maybe you already use them for at least one of your assignments in Blackboard. But perhaps you find creating a rubric for a particular assignment rather daunting, and wonder if it is really even worth the effort to create one? Or maybe you have used one in grading, but discovered it did not really capture the qualities in student performance that were a priority, and so ended up dithering over the right score and wasting precious time, rather than saving it?

February 14, 2019 12:00 - 1:00 pm

Registration

Faculty Co-host: Sherry Deckman, Assistant Professor,
Middle and High School Education

Can't attend? If you are interested but unable to participate on that day and time, please click on the registration link and you will see an option to request a replay.