Sabin Howard is an internationally renowned classical figurative sculptor and draughtsman. His sculptures and drawings have been collected by museums and private collectors all over the world. In a New York Times review, D. Dominick Lombardi, wrote: "Sabin Howard, a sculptor of immense talent, has created some of the last decade's most substantive Realist sculpture. When viewing his works, visitors may be reminded of the times when sculptors like Donatello and Rodin walked the earth." Sabin is also the author of The Art of Life, a photo essay about figurative art through the ages. He is currently the sculptor on the National World War I Memorial project.
