THE CUNY INSTITUTE FOR HEALTH EQUITY
2023 YEAR IN REVIEW
THE FOLLOWING ARE FEATURED INITIATIVES

PROMOTION OF HEALTH DISPARITIES RESEARCH

GRANTS AWARDED:
CIHE received an NSF sub-award for the HSI Hubs Core Objectives project focused on equity improvements in STEM education for USD $171,000 for 5 years.

CIHE staff was selected to conduct the Long-term evaluation of the project titled Bronx REACH with CDC funding, in alliance with The Institute for Family Medicine. This award is in the amount of USD $123,000 over a span of 5 years.

GRANTS UNDER REVIEW:
NIH-R25 SEPA GRANT PROPOSAL
This proposal’s aim is to provide health disparities training for high school students and teachers at Marie Curie High School in the Bronx. The overall goal of this project is to increase the number of Bronx high school students who pursue studies and careers in health sciences.

This is a multi-principal Investigator proposal with Drs. Roldós, Budescu, Downing and Gonzáles for USD $1.2 million for 5 years.

Health Disparities Research Dissemination
The CUNY Institute of Health Equity has played a pivotal role in advancing scholarly and scientific research, facilitating the dissemination of impactful findings. Among the noteworthy contributions stemming from these endeavors are:

- Dr. Judith Aponte and colleagues worked on a COVID-19 survey among NYC non-Hispanic Black and Hispanic/Latino adults with diabetes.
- Dr. Judith Aponte and Dr. Maria Isabel Roldós, published a portfolio analysis of National Institutes of Health R-series Grants portfolio of racism and healthcare.
- Drs. Roldós and Jaye Jones collaborated with Community-Based Organizations (CBOs) and a GIS student to publish "The First Steps to Building a Research Collaborative Using Strength-Based Assessments and GIS Maps."
- Drs. John Orazem, Talita Fortunato Tavares and Dr. Maria Isabel Roldós looked at the Longitudinal trends (2011-2020) of premature mortality and years of potential life loss (YPLL) and associated covariates of the 62 New York State counties.
- Drs. Mia Budescu, Martin J. Downing, Taillisha M. Gonzalez, and Katherine Gregory worked on the Omnipresent Policing and Sleep Health in the Bronx.

PARTNERS IN RESEARCH:
CIHE is in the process of signing a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) with BronxCare to explore research and service projects.
STUDENT ENGAGEMENT/MENTORSHIP

- CIHE continued its focus on student mentorship, and supported two Federal Work Study Students and two Interns.

- Participated in the SRAB Student Scholar Conference and the 2023 HS2N Health Equity Summit.

- CIHE mentees also participated in various workshops and events. These included learning to use bibliographic software like Zotero, mastering efficient research tools in the library, and gaining proficiency in GIS mapping.

- During the fall of 2023, CIHE established and cultivated a collaborative partnership with the Latinx Pre-Medical Student Association PLUS (LMSA+).
