2ND ANNUAL

LEADERSHIP CONSORTIUM CONFERENCE GOALS

In a recent article in the Journal of College Student Development, Marcia Roe Clark, Assistant Professor of Educational Leadership and Policy at The University at Buffalo, State University of New York suggests that the urban commuter student experience is best viewed through the lens of the challenges they face and strategies they employ to cope with those challenges.

As Student Affairs practitioners, our challenge is to help students work toward graduating with an academic degree while facilitating their development as socially responsible and ethical leaders.

Our main goals of the conference are:

- To highlight the challenges students encounter, and suggest practical ways for them to negotiate their college experience
- To inspire young men and women to perceive themselves as leaders and seek to accept leadership responsibilities as part of their contribution to society
- To engage a network of students to pursue leadership development and service on and off their college campuses

The Herbert H. Lehman Center for Student Leadership is pleased to have you share in our Leadership Consortium Conference, and would like to extend our gratitude to our Student Affairs colleagues at Lehman and CUNY and for their continued collaboration.

This Annual Conference is one of the programs offered at the Herbert H. Lehman Center for Student Leadership Development. All of our programs in leadership development are open to all Lehman students. If you would like to get involved email: suzette.ramsundar@lehman.cuny.edu

Cordially,

Suzette Ramsundar, Associate Director of Campus Life &
Coordinator of Herbert H. Lehman Center Student Leadership Development
Lehman College, CUNY

WELCOME ADDRESS FROM
JOSÉ MAGDALENO,
VICE PRESIDENT, FOR STUDENT AFFAIRS, LEHMAN COLLEGE

Dear Students,

I am pleased to welcome you to the Second Annual Leadership Consortium Conference at Lehman College. The Conference theme for this year echoes a long-standing commitment of The Division of Student Affairs at Lehman which is to Engage in Best Practices for Urban Commuter Students in Leadership.

One of the major goals of this year's conference is to encourage students to discover and identify themselves as leaders on campus and inspire them to serve their global communities as responsible, ethical leaders. For many of our students, this is often a difficult and complicated journey. During this Conference students will have an opportunity to meet and speak with an accomplished group of workshop facilitators who will address some of the critical issues emerging young student leaders have to negotiate today.

In addition to providing information and resources directly to students to support personal growth and leadership development, the Conference will serve as a conduit to bring together faculty, staff and administrators from our leadership programs on campus and across the University to explore best practices and facilitate dialogue about our efforts to support student success and development.

Lehman College is delighted to host this Leadership Conference. I look forward to your enthusiastic participation in today's dialogue.

Welcome!

José Magdaleno
Vice President
Division of Student Affairs
Lehman College, CUNY

KEYNOTE INTRODUCTION FROM
MICHAEL E. SULLIVAN,
DIRECTOR OF CAMPUS LIFE, LEHMAN COLLEGE

Dear Conference Participants,

Welcome to the Second Annual Lehman Leadership Consortium Conference, our theme this year is: Best Practices for Engaging Urban Commuter Students in Leadership.

In addition to the continued support from our colleagues in the Division of Student Affairs, including the Counseling Center, The Office of Community Engagement, Career Services Center and the Urban Male Leadership Program, I note the program support from John Jay College, Hostos Community College, and Bronx Community College, I especially want to thank the CUNY Malave Leadership Academy for their assistance in defraying the costs of the Conference.

At the conclusion of the day I hope you will have expanded your knowledge of the best practices in leadership development for urban commuter students and will be able to incorporate this knowledge in your individual leadership roles.

Cordially,

Michael E. Sullivan
Director of Campus Life
Lehman College, CUNY

ENGAGING URBAN COMMUTER STUDENTS IN LEADERSHIP 2ND ANNUAL CONFERENCE

KEYNOTE SPEAKER: DR JILLIAN KINZIE

Dr. Kinzie has served as the Associate Director at the Indiana University Center for Postsecondary Research since 2002. She joined the Center to manage the Documenting Effective Educational Practice (DEEP) project, a research initiative to discover how institutions with higher than predicted graduation rates and student engagement scores achieve their notable levels of effectiveness. DEEP is an outgrowth of the institutional improvement and educational effectiveness emphasis of the National Survey of Student Engagement (NSSE). She enjoys working with institutions interested in using NSSE results, institutional data, and other information about student learning to inform campus planning, shape the development of learning communities, and assess effectiveness.

She has co-authored a monograph on theories of teaching and learning, and a Lumina Foundation Monograph Continuity and Change in College Choice: National Policy, Institutional Practices and Student Decision Making. She has also conducted research on women in undergraduate science and retention of underrepresented students. She is co-author of Student Success in College: Creating Conditions that Matter (Jossey-Bass, 2005) and One Size Does Not Fit All: Traditional and Innovative Models of Student Affairs Practice (Routledge, 2006).
